

COMES TOO LATE TO BE EFFECTIVE

Opinion of Head of Alabama
Miners as to Injunction Against Strike.

PREPARE TO LEAVE TOOLS

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 31.—"The injunction came too late to be effective." This was the comment of J. R. Kenner, president of the Alabama district No. 20, United Mine Workers of America, when he was notified that Judge Anderson, of the federal court at Indianapolis, had issued an injunction against the calling of the coal strike. Mr. Kenner is a member of the executive committee of the mine workers, but had not been served with injunction papers at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

"I am taking orders only from national headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America and have received no orders to rescind the strike order. Even if it did, it would be too late to issue an stopping order in time to prevent a walkout," declared Kenner.

According to National Organizer William L. Harrison, mine workers began cleaning up their places in the mines today preparatory to quitting their posts at midnight.

Not a Bite of Breakfast Until You Drink Water

Says a glass of hot water and phosphate prevents miner
and keeps us fit.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind incombustible ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and ptomaines, poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before breakfast each morning drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the bowels the previous day's poisons and toxins, and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to colds, headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

continuous quantity production, high company officials claim.

Deputy sheriffs by the score have been sworn in and are to be stationed at bridges, tipples and at all mines in the district. National guardsmen have received no orders, but Maj. Hartley Moon, adjutant-general, is in the district studying the situation.

No disorder is expected by J. R. Kenner, president of the Alabama district No. 20, United Mine Workers of America, who says he will use all efforts to avert disturbances.

Every attempt will be made by operators to continue operation of mines during the strike, according to announcement at a meeting of the Alabama Coal Operators' association.

STEEL TOWN VISITOR BETTER GET PASSPORT

Mounted Men Dog Steps of Strangers in McKeesport.
(By MILTON BRONNER, N. E. A.)
Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 31.—I have been in the land of "verboten."

It is in Germany and we Americans said a good many harsh things about it.

Today the land of "verboten" is in the Monongahela valley, and its headquarters are in McKeesport, a city fourteen miles from Pittsburgh. It is only 500 physical miles from Washington, but just about 3,000 miles away in spirit, temper and purpose.

Let me give you the simple narrative of my own adventure in McKeesport. I went there to ask the mayor why he would not permit the strikers to meet in halls, and also to run down the numerous stories I had heard of abuses of workmen by the state constabulary.

I didn't find the mayor and so went to the strike headquarters, where one of the organizers agreed to go with me to homes where I could personally interview people as to the conduct of the constabulary.

We were like Mary and her little lamb. My guide took me up the alley and into a side entrance. A policeman saw us and a few minutes later, I heard the clatter of heavy boots in the alleyway. Curious as to what it was, I looked out at the very moment that two mounted members of the state constabulary looked in.

I didn't think the police officers, nor by being with a union organizer. Also I did not suppose they were interested in me. I was to learn how mistaken I was.

My guide and I started out the front door and went down the street. So did the two mounted men. We turned south. So did the mounted men. We were like Mary and her little lamb. Everywhere we went, those mounted men were bound to go. I suggested to the organizer that we go back to his office, as I didn't want him to get into trouble. He walked down the main street of McKeesport. One of the troopers followed me.

I went into the skyscraper in which the city offices are, to see whether the mayor had come back. He was still out, so I went down stairs. My trooper had dismounted from his horse and was patiently standing by the elevator and stairway so he would be sure to see me when I came out.

Shadow Follows to Railway Station. I started for the railroad station to take the next train to Pittsburgh. My trooper, again on horseback, followed me. By this time quite a number of people were watching my very visible shadow.

When I had purchased my ticket and came out on the train platform, a young, unmounted officer of state constabulary came up to me and said: "You are a stranger here?" I replied that I was. He asked my business. I told him I was a newspaperman investigating strike conditions. He asked whether I had any credentials to show I was a newspaperman. Luckily, I had in my pocket my national press galleries in Washington, but better still, I had the card each Washington correspondent got during the war. This was in the nature of a passport, which admitted the bearer to all government buildings. Each man's pass was adorned with photograph of himself. This card served admirably as identification.

"Sudden of Proof" is on the Stranger. The officer of the state constabulary said this was quite satisfactory. He also asked on what train I was going and to what place.

Said I: "Pardon me, let me ask you a few questions now. What would you have done if I had not been lucky enough to establish my identity and profession?"

He replied that the burden of proof would have been upon me. Said I: "Meaning just what by that?" He explained these were ticklish times in McKeesport and he could afford to take no chances.

Wherefore, my advice to you, if you are going to McKeesport now, is to forget that you are in America. Be sure to get a passport. Believe me, it is not a comfortable feeling to have a perfectly able-bodied, well armed, mounted constable following just at your heels. It makes you think of all the things you read of Hunland and in Russia of the czars.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Officials of international unions, with headquarters in Washington, declared today that organized labor would rally with all its resources to the defense of the miners' leaders, should an attempt be made to prosecute them for calling the strike scheduled to begin on Monday.

"The unions will give full moral and financial support to the miners maintaining their right to strike," said H. Johnston, president of the International Machinists' union. The government's attempt to prosecute the miners' leaders, should an attempt be made to prosecute them for calling the strike scheduled to begin on Monday.

Johnston, who was a member of the war labor board, added:

"The miners have a clear case when they argue that, if the war is not ended and the restrictions are not lifted, the government is not applying fair powers equally between employer and employee. The miners are a dozen cases where employers are refusing to comply with rulings made by the war labor board, which was appointed by the president."

"Surely the administration does not intend to give the workers the impression that laws are made for the rich and not for the poor and powerful," Johnston said. "I refuse to believe the president would attempt to address the laborers to the miners. Organized labor resents its threatening tone."

Kiwanis Committee to Aid
Red Cross Drive Appointed

Following a resolution endorsing the Red Cross Christmas roll call by the Kiwanis club at its last weekly meeting, the following committee was named by President F. E. Mahoney to cooperate with the central committee in every way possible: H. K. Mahoney, chairman; Andrew W. Smith, George Y. Forman, T. O. Busbee and Herbert W. Spence.

The Kiwanis committee is urging all Kiwanians to have their plants or stores organized so that it will not be necessary for the Red Cross committee to canvass each employee individually. The following appeal has been sent out by the committee to Kiwanians:

"At the last meeting of the club a committee was appointed to co-operate with Alex. Querry, the chairman for Hamilton county of the American Legion, in the third roll call of the American Red Cross, to be held Nov. 2 and Nov. 11. The Red Cross nurse who brought back health to the suffering soldier will now enter the homes of the United States, bringing the same message of health and happiness.

"Babies are to be saved in America, tuberculosis and other diseases are to be combated, and with the same skill and energy that the Red Cross served the soldiers over there, so will it now care for the home folk who are here. When you answer the third Red Cross roll call you make possible greater effectiveness in the work we are doing."

"Your committee of the Kiwanis club sends this appeal to you to have the business establishment which you represent fully canvassed either by an individual or a shop committee so that every employee is given a chance to subscribe and the collector calls the complete subscription can be handed in."

"The roll call is for membership in the American Red Cross for one year and the fee is $1. It will be great if we can report 100 per cent. enrollment in the roll of honor. If you would like to have a speaker address your employees in regard to this matter, you can advise Alex. Querry, chairman of Hamilton County Red Cross roll call, and he will send you a speaker."

Leila Glenn Held Under Big
Bond for Murder of Cannon

Charged with the murder of James Cannon, colored, Leila Glenn, colored, was held to the grand jury under a bond of $10,000 at the conclusion of a preliminary hearing before Judge Martin Fleming Friday morning. Henry Mills, colored, an important witness in the case, was arrested immediately after the hearing on a charge of being accessory to the murder. His arrest was ordered by Atty.-Gen. George W. Chandler, who, with his assistant, W. F. McGaughey, conducted the examination for the state.

According to the evidence, Leila took a gun from Cannon and he struck her with his hand. Mills, who was present during this part of the difficulty, testified that he went into the kitchen to get a drink of water, and while in the kitchen he heard a struggle. When he returned Cannon was lying on the floor. It was proved out that Cannon was stabbed in the heart. Patrolman Crump, one of the officers in the case, said the police had difficulty in getting into the house.

The proof failed to show that Mills made any effort to stop the difficulty between Leila and Cannon. Mills claimed he did not know there was any trouble between them until the difficulty started.

Atty. Eugene Bryan represented the accused woman. She did not take the stand.

ADVOCATES SHORT HAIR FOR WOMEN

ELIZABETH KALB

Washington, Oct. 30.—Miss Elizabeth Kalb, editor of the Suffragist, has bobbed her hair and predicts that soon all women will discover the advantages of short locks.

"The day of the short-haired woman will soon be here in reality," said Miss Kalb. "I cut mine for convenience's sake and under no circumstances would I let it grow long again. My head feels better, I am rid of hairpins, I don't have to hang my head out of the window over the fire escape for hours to dry my hair when I wash it. Men got onto this centuries ago, but women are adopting it with their new freedom."

Miss Kalb was graduated from Rice institute, at Houston, Tex., in 1916, being with the first graduating class of that school. Her diploma gave her an A. B. degree, bearing the words "with distinction." She studied literature a year at the University of Chicago, then came to Washington and served five days in the District of Columbia jail for being a militant picket. A hunger strike made it necessary to take her from prison on a stretcher.

Injunction Secured to Prevent Sale of Liquor

New York, Oct. 30.—United States District Judge Hand today granted a temporary injunction at the request of the United States district attorney prohibiting the sale of all liquor containing 1-2 of 1 per cent. or more alcohol.

Under injunction saloonkeepers who violate the prohibition enforcement law can be summarily arrested and imprisoned for contempt of court.

CONDITION OF COTTON

Washington, Oct. 31.—The condition of the cotton crop on Oct. 31, according to a supplement report issued today by the department of agriculture at the direction of congress. No comparative figures for last year are available, the announcement said, and there is no basis for a forecast of production. The report as of Sept. 25 gave the condition as 54.4 per cent. of normal, which forecast a production of 10,686,000 bales.

Ben Bolt's Lady Friend.

In another scotchly regard our auctioneer friend betrays somewhat the same abrupt shifts of temperamental manifestations that are reported to have been shown by Ben Bolt's lady friend.

I am speaking of the late lamented Sweet Alice, who—as will be recalled—would weep with delight when you gave her a smile, but trembled with fear at your frown.

Apparently Alice couldn't help behaving in this curious way—one gathers that she must have been the village idiot, harmless enough, but undoubtedly an annoying sort of person to have hanging round, weeping copiously whenever anybody else was cheerful, and perhaps immediately afterwards trembling in a disconcerting sort of way. She must have spoiled many a pleasant party in her day, so probably it was just as well that the community saw fit to file her away in the old churchyard in the obscure corner mentioned more or less rhythmically in the discourses recorded as having been made to Mr. Bolt upon the occasion of his return to his native shire after what presumably had been a considerable absence.

The poet chronicler, Mr. Enghab, is a trifle vague on this point, but considering everything it is but fair to infer that Alice's funeral was practically by acclamation. Beyond question it must have been a relief to all concerned, including the family of the deceased, to see that a person so grievously afflicted mentally was at last permanently planted under a certain slab of stone rather loosely for the time being in conversation above referred to as granite so gray.

One wishes Mr. Enghab had been a trifle more exact in furnishing the particular details of this sad case. Still, I suppose it is hard for a poet to be technical and poetical at the same time. And though he failed to go into particular details of this sad case, still, I suppose it is hard for a poet to be technical and poetical at the same time. And though he failed to go into particular details of this sad case, still, I suppose it is hard for a poet to be technical and poetical at the same time.

NEW OIL TREATMENT FOR RHEUMATISM

Bring Relief to Thousands of Sufferers.

New oil treatment for rheumatism almost proves a revelation. Over five million bottles under absolute guarantee to give satisfaction or money refunded, and less than a dozen bottles have been returned. This great Pain Killer and Antiseptic combined, technical and poetical at the same time. And though he failed to go into particular details of this sad case, still, I suppose it is hard for a poet to be technical and poetical at the same time.

Don't delay; take a bottle into your home today and get instant relief. On sale 50c, 60c and $1.00 at Jo Amerson's. (Adv.)

culars I am quite sure that when asked if he didn't remember Alice, Mr. Bolt answered in the decided affirmative. It is a cinch he couldn't have forgotten her, the official half wit and lightning change artist of the country.
